Filling the General Manager's Seat

by Kevin Shea

Many say that one of the toughest jobs in all of New England, and possibly all of the nation, is that of the general manager of the Boston Red Sox. There is hardly a more scrutinized and pressure-filled position in all of baseball. For 10 years, James "Lou" Gorman successfully filled that position. Under Lou's tenure, the Sox won three division championships in 1986, 1988 and 1990, and an American League championship with a World Series appearance in 1986. As G.M., Lou always handled adverse situation, and often heavy criticism from the media, with class and integrity. During this past off-season, Lou was named executive vice president of baseball operations, and a search to fill the general manager position began. The Red Sox sought out a baseball executive that would fit well with their present and future needs, as well as someone who would fit with the Red Sox commitment to bringing another World Series championship to the loyal fans of New England. The Red Sox were extremely fortunate to find exactly that individual.

On January 27, 1994, Dan Duquette was named executive vice president and general manager of the Boston Red Sox. Duquette, 35, was vice president and general manager of the Montreal Expos since September 19, 1991. At that time, he was the youngest G.M. in the major leagues. He had joined the Expos on October 8, 1987, as director of player development, and was named assistant general manager on January 25, 1990. Dan has had success with his belief in building a strong minor league system to feed the M.L. club. During his six years with Montreal, Dan was instrumental in putting together the contending Expos team of today with players such as Ken Hill, Rondell White, Larry Walker, John Wetteland and Marquis Grissom. Last season, the Expos finished second in the N.L. East with a 94-68 (.580) record, three games out of first place, after winning 87 games in 1992 and 71 in 1991. The Expos were honored as the 1993 Topps Major League organization of the year.

Dan is a native of the western Massachusetts town of Dalton, where he was a catcher and teammate of former Red Sox pitcher Jeff Reardon at Wahconah Regional High School. He grew up an avid fan of the Red Sox and has always harbored the dream of one day working for the Red Sox with its strong baseball tradition. At Amherst College, he played varsity baseball and football and earned a bachelor's degree in English Literature in 1980. He began his professional baseball career in July, 1980 with the Milwaukee Brewers as an administrative assistant in scouting and player development. Dan was in the Brewers minor league and scouting departments for five years, and was then named scouting director in 1986.

In 1992 Duquette was named The Sporting News Major League Executive of the Year in a vote conducted among 26 major league teams. He was also named the UPI National League Executive of the Year. Previously, Dan was a member of Baseball America's Organization of the Year five times, first with Milwaukee (1985-86-87) and then with Montreal (1988-90). Dan is an avid alpine and cross-country skier. He returns home to his native New England with his wife, Sharon (Brophy), who graduated from the University of New Hampshire, their daughter, Denise, and their two sons, Dan, Jr. and Dana.

Dan Duquette's dream to work for the Red Sox has come true and now he has joined John Harrington and the entire Red Sox organization in their commitment to making their dream of winning another World Series, a reality.

1994 Red Sox Perspectus

by Butch Hobson

I have to say that I'm very excited about our 1994 Red Sox team. During the off-season we added several impact players that will surely complement what is one of the best, if not the very best, pitching staffs in baseball today. Our ball club will be exciting to watch with the addition of great speed on the base paths from Otis Nixon and Billy Hall. Nixon's a switchhitter whose speed will not only make things happen for our offense, but we'll see him chase down line-drives and make outstanding defensive plays. He batted .269 last season and stole 47 bases. He's a great bunter who beat out 31 infield hits and 8 bunts. We also added speedy player in Billy Hall from the 1993 Rule V draft. He has 29 stolen bases last year which brought his total in the minors to 103 stolen bases.

We needed to find a catcher for this season and our search led us to Dave Valle, who played in Seattle last year. We're looking to Dave to extend his career best season of last year into this coming year. In '93 he had career highs with 135 games caught, 19 doubles, 13 home runs and 63 RBI. He threw out 57 of 125 runners and finished the year with a .995 fielding percentage. We also picked-up free agent catcher Damon Berryhill from Atlanta. With Valle, he'll join veteran back-up Bob Melvin, and our promising prospect John Flaherty, in giving us depth behind the plate. We hope to see Damon contributing with some clutch hitting like he did in '93 with a .273 average with runners in scoring positions and two outs.

We're looking for a healthy Roger Clemens to bounce back with a great season after a tough '93. He'll join the other half of our one-two, lefty-righty duo, Frank Viola. Frank has recovered from his injuries of last year, is feeling great, and ready for the '94 season. We expect that Danny Darwin will pitch as well as he did last season. He was our top starter last year and set career-highs in starts with 34 and wins with 15. Another bright point on our staff last year was '93 International League Pitcher-of-the-Year Aaron Sele, who began the season at Pawtucket and went 8-2, 2.19 in 14 starts. In June, we brought him up to the majors and he impressed the baseball world with a 7-2, 2.74 record. There'll be a battle during this Spring for the number five position in the rotation. We'll see how Joe Hesketh, Nate Minchey, Scott Taylor and Gar Finnfold perform in camp.

Our bullpen will again be very strong this year with plenty of depth. Returning are Scott Bankhead, Greg Harris, Jose Melendez, Ken Ryan, Paul Quantrill and our closer, a healthy Jeff Russell. We also have our young up-and-coming pitchers in camp this year, some of whom we got a look at in Boston toward the end of last season; Corey Bailey, Joe Caruso, Joe Ciccarella, Rob Henkel and Tim Vanegmond. Last year's bullpen specialist Tony Fossas, free-agent newcomer Chris Howard and prospect Don Florence will be competing in camp for a left-hander spot in the bullpen.

Our young infield got a lot of experience last year. Mo Vaughn has begun to prove that he's a big leaguer with potential to be a future baseball great. Last year was Mo's first full M.L. season and he led, or was at the top, in most of our offensive categories. He hit .297 with 34 doubles, 29 HR and 101 RBI. Last year was also John Valentin's first full season with us, and in addition to playing some solid defense, he hit .278 with 40 doubles (tied 3rd most in A.L.) and 66 RBI. Scott Cooper was selected to the '93 All-Star team and finished the year with 29 doubles, 9HR, 63 RBI and a .279 average. Tim Lincecum comes hitting .331 with 42 hits, 10 doubles and 17 RBI in 39 games. Scott Fletcher will play second and maybe some short this year. Speedy Billy Hall and youngster Luis Ortiz will give us depth off the bench.

Mike Greenwell bounced back in '93 from an injury-shortened '92, as he hit .315 with 13 HR and 72 RBI. I expect to see him spark our offense again this year with DH Andre Dawson. Andre's leadership and hard work will continue to set the example for our gritty team. Bob Zupcic and Billy Hatcher will give us depth in the outfield, and with the youngsters we'll see with us at some point during the season, like Gregg Blosser, Jeff McNeely, Matt Stairs and Jose Malave, our future looks bright. We've got a great bunch of hard working guys who want to win, and we're looking forward to a great year.

The Baseball Network on the Air "Baseball Night in America" Debuts in July

Of all the changes that have swept across the sports television landscape in the 1990's, perhaps the most dramatic innovation occurred in May 1993 when The Baseball Network was created. Formed as a joint venture among Major League Baseball, ABC and NBC, The Baseball Network is responsible for coordinating all of the elements of MLB's network-television arrangements.

"The Baseball Network represents a major step forward in showcasing baseball on national television," says Ken Schanzer, who was named President and CEO of The Baseball Network in July 1993. "Baseball has a remarkable hold on people's emotions, and we intend to tap into that strong emotional bond. Our number one goal is to make sure baseball fans see compelling, entertaining and memorable action on network television."

The landmark venture marks the first time a major U.S. sports league or organization has elected to take control of its national television package, managing the on-air production, advertising sales and corporate sponsorship of the sport.

The return of ABC and NBC - after a four year absence - as the network broadcasters of Major League Baseball is a combination of renewed partnership and ground-breaking innovation. The result for the viewing public is that more baseball will be seen in prime time on network television than ever before.

ABC and NBC have a rich history in televising the game of baseball (they shared MLB's network-television package from 1976-1989). Their reunion with the sport will enable two of broadcasting's premier announcers to return to the baseball microphone: Al Michaels and Bob Costas.

Michaels, an 18-year veteran of ABC Sports who has described the action of six World Series, will return this summer as the network's primary play-by-play baseball announcer. Michaels, who called Cincinnati Reds and San Francisco Giants games in the 1970's, is recognized as one of the most polished and informative broadcasters in the country. In addition to regular-season and Divisional Playoff action on ABC, Michaels, a two-time Emmy Award winner, will call the play-by-play for the 1994 World Series.

Costas, a five-time Emmy Award winner who is recognized as one of the finest storytellers and interviewers in network broadcasting, will be NBC's lead play-by-play announcer. Costas, who worked NBC "Game of the Week" action from 1983-1989, will work on NBC's regular-season broadcasts as well as The All-Star Game and League Championship Series.

NBC, whose baseball heritage dates back to 1947, will return to the ballpark on July 12 when the peacock network telecasts the 65th annual All-Star Game from Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh. NBC will also telecast regular-season action on six consecutive Friday nights, beginning August 26th. In the post-season, NBC will telecast The American and National League Championship Series.

ABC takes its first swings just three days after NBC's All-Star Game broadcast with a Saturday night telecast on July 16. Like NBC, ABC will broadcast baseball in prime time one night a week for six consecutive weeks. ABC also will broadcast the newly created Divisional Playoffs and the 91st edition of The World Series.

A strategic component of the ABC and NBC television packages is the prime-time setting of all network telecasts in 1994. Research clearly demonstrates that more fans of all ages are more likely to watch baseball in the evening, particularly in the summertime.

All of the regular season telecasts on

ABC and NBC are scheduled on evenings when school will not be in session the following morning, enabling younger viewers to enjoy the network presentations.

Additionally, all weekend post-season telecasts, including Games 1-2 and 6-7 of the World Series, will be on the air at 7 p.m. (Eastern Time).

"We fully realize baseball's future lies with the young boys and girls in grade school," says Schanzer. "Many of us can point to a precise moment in our childhoods when baseball made its indelible mark on our imagination. We have arranged our broadcast schedules and start times to guarantee that youngsters can watch plenty of regular and post-season action."

Another significant part of the new broadcast plan is the regionalization of all network telecasts prior to the World Series.

The regionalization plan for baseball will mirror the strategy used by the networks when telecasting regular-season college and pro-football action. Viewers will be presented with the most meaningful game in their TV market. For the fans in cities with Major League teams, the regionalization plan virtually ensures that the games involving the hometown club will be shown locally.

A significant element of the network broadcast plan is the commitment to take the viewer around the country to sample action from other key contests. During all ABC and NBC telecasts, viewers will have the opportunity to look in on other games, particularly if a baseball record is on the verge of being set.

"Baseball Night in America" will be the theme of the innovative telecasts. All 12 prime-time "Game of the Week" telecasts and the first two rounds of the post-season playoffs will include frequent score updates and highlight clips.

The New Red Sox Coaching Staff

by Kevin Shea

In earlier days of baseball, there was little value placed on the make-up and role of a manager's coaching staff. Often the coaching staff was made up of personal friends of managers or general managers, with no thought given to their qualifications. Through the years, the job of a baseball manager has become a complex and demanding compilation of responsibilities, on and off the field. Today's managers must not only focus on each day's game, but they also must concern themselves with each team member's personality and relationship with others in the clubhouse and the players' image in the media. The game itself has become more involved with the advent of detailed statistical reports, high-tech video usage and fans' demand for in-depth media coverage. Today, baseball is a big-business game with enormous pressure for each club to be a winner. Each team's ultimate goal is to provide a winner for their home city fans.

Furthermore, baseball players are spending less time in the minor league systems before coming up, and thus don't receive as much of the all-around training and instruction that thoroughly prepares them for the long major league season. Hence, there has been a greater emphasis placed on the role and chemistry of a manager's coaching staff. Owners and general managers now realize that it's imperative to surround their managers with a staff that has the right blend of experience, dedication and talent. It is this crucial mix of extraordinary coaching talent that the Red Sox wanted to work with Manager Butch Hobson.

So, during the off-season, the Red Sox appointed three new coaches to join Hobson's staff. Mike Roarke is the new pitching coach, John Wathan takes over the bullpen coaching duties and Frank White Jr. is the new first base coach. They join Gary Allenson, who became the M.L. bullpen coach in 1992, and is now the new third base coach, and Mike Easler, who returns as the Red Sox hitting instructor. The Red Sox are looking forward to utilizing the tremendous wealth of baseball knowledge and experience that these new coaches bring to the team.

Wathan comes to Boston after two years with the Angels. He began the '92 season as the California third base coach, and that May he took over as interim manager following a bus crash that injured Manager Buck Rodgers. Last season, he was the Angels bench coach. John played his entire 15-year professional career as a catcher with Kansas City beginning in 1971 (in M.L. 1976-85). In August of '87, he was named the Royals manager after leading their AAA Omaha team from the start of the season. Wathan held the position through May, 1991, compiling an overall 287-270 record (.515), making him the 3rd winningest manager in K.C.'s history behind Whitey Herzog and Dick Howser.

Mike Roarke returns to the Sox organization where he was the Pawtucket (AAA) pitching coach from 1981-1983. Mike has over 41 years of professional baseball experience as a player, coach and manager, including 19 years as a M.L. coach. In addition to coaching in the Red Sox system, he coached for Detroit (1965-66,'70), California (1967-69), the Chicago Cubs (1976-80), St. Louis (1984-90) and San Diego (1991-93). Roarke had a five-year stint (1971-75) as a minor league manager. He managed the Toledo Mud Hens, the Wichita Aeros and the Tigers Evansville Club, a team he guided to an American Association Championship in 1972.

Also rejoining the Red Sox organization is new first base coach, Frank White, Jr. In November of 1991, he was named the manager of the Gulf Coast Red Sox in the G.C. Rookie League, replacing Felix Maldonado, who was promoted to manager of Winter Haven. Although he was slated to return to the Sox organization in '93, Frank took a leave from baseball to attend to family matters. He spent his entire amazing playing career with the Royals from 1973-90. As K.C.'s second baseman, he won eight Gold Gloves, appeared in five all-star games, played in 2,324 games (2nd most for K.C. to George Brett) and hit .255 with .407 doubles, 58 triples, 160 HR and 886 RBI. Frank played in five All-Star games, six A.L.C.S (was MVP in 1980) and two World Series (1980-85). He was recently named to the Royals Hall of Fame, and his number (20) will be retired Sept. 3.

Roarke, Wathan and White have been involved in professional baseball for a combined 85 years. As minor and major league players, coaches and managers, they have amassed an immeasurable wealth of knowledge and understanding of the game. Wathan and White know each other very well from their years together in K.C. Roarke, as a New England resident, and White, as a manager in the Sox organization, know the Boston "baseball scene" very well. It is this mix of knowledge and chemistry that Butch Hobson will have to draw from as he guides the Red Sox through the coming year. The new coaching staff's contributions should help the Red Sox reach their full potential, on and off the field.

The New Faces of the Red Sox

by Kevin Shea

In keeping with their dedication to excellence and to bringing another World Series Championship to New England, John Harrington and his front office staff were very busy this past off-season searching for the necessary ingredients to complement an already promising American League East contender. They looked to bring in a center fielder, a catcher and the element of much needed speed to their line-up. These ingredients would complement a solid pitching staff led by three-time Cy Young Award winner Roger Clemens, a powerful lineup with the likes of Mo Vaughn, Andre Dawson and Mike Greenwell, and a solid defense with John Valentin, Scott Cooper and Scott Fletcher. The Red Sox found exactly what they set out for when they signed free agent center fielder Otis Nixon, free agent catchers David Valle and Damon Berryhill, and infielder Billy Hall.

When the Red Sox signed Nixon, they not only added one of the best center fielders and one of the quickest and most exciting players on the base-paths in baseball today, but they also added a quality person whose own community involvement will fit extremely well with the extensive programs of the Red Sox Community Relations Department. One of the community programs that Otis has concentrated on is the "StrikeOut Foundation", a program that he founded, which educates school-age children about the dangers of drug abuse and provides rehabilitation.

The switch-hitting Nixon was with the Atlanta Braves for the past three seasons. In 1993 he hit .269 in 134 games and finished the year with 47 stolen bases, third most in the N.L. He's an exciting player who makes things happen when he's at the plate and on the bases. Of his 124 total hits last season, 31 were infield hits, including 8 bunt singles. American League pitchers will have to become acclimated to facing Nixon in the lead-off spot when they take on the 1994 Red Sox lineup. Last season Otis batted .307 (31-101) when leading off for the Braves. When he gets on base, one can be certain that Otis will be drawing the attention of the opposing pitcher and the entire defense. During Nixon's 11 years of M.L. experience, he has stolen 352 bases with 247 the last five years. Otis can also dazzle the opposition with solid defense. He has a career .988 fielding percentage with only 21 errors. Nixon will contribute immensely to the dedicated efforts of the Red Sox on the field and in the community.

The Red Sox search for a front-line catcher led them to the signing of Dave Valle, who had previously spent his entire 16-year professional career with the Seattle Mariners. Valle had one of the best years of his M.L. career last season. He batted .258 and set career highs with 135 games caught, 109 hits, 19 doubles, 13 home runs and 63 RBI. He was hit by pitchers 17 times, which led the A.L. Dave has some excellent defensive skills. Last season he threw out 57 of 125 base stealers and had a .995 fielding percentage, both of which were the second best in the A.L. He led A.L. catchers with 881 putouts and 71 assists. Valle was also very active in the Seattle community, where among many activities, he served as the Honorary Chairman of the Ronald McDonald House, The Children's Resource Line and Easter Seals. He also founded the C.A.T.C.H. Foundation (Christian Athletes Teaching, Coaching and Helping). In addition to his outstanding contributions on the field, his continuing community work will fit well with all the Red Sox efforts.

The signing of Damon Berryhill adds extra depth behind the plate, which is extremely helpful during the long grind of the 162-game season. With Valle, he'll be joining catcher Bob Melvin, the veteran Sox back-up and John Flaherty, a highly regarded defensive Red Sox prospect. Berryhill has fine defensive skills and his ability as a switchhitter will certainly be an asset for the Red Sox lineup. Berryhill joins Nixon in his move to Boston from Atlanta. The 30-year old had been with the Braves for two complete seasons. Last year he hit .245 with 18 doubles, 8 HR, and 43 RBI in a career-high 115 games, while splitting the catching duties with Greg Olson. From the right side he batted .272 with a .432 slugging percentage. Damon came through with some clutch hitting in '93 as he hit .273 with runners in scoring position and two outs. Behind the plate, he's consistently solid. Last season he finished with a .990 fielding percentage, and he threw out 25 of 87 runners attempting to steal, including four Cardinal runners in one game. Not only does he contribute with his steady defense, but he also has a great ability to draw out the very best from a pitching staff.

The Red Sox decided to turn to the 1993 Rule V Draft to add additional speed to their lineup. They drafted Billy Hall, a 25-year-old switchhitter from the San Diego Padres organization, who had stolen 103 bases in three years in the minors. Hall had been selected by San Diego in the 1991 June Free Agent Draft. During 1991 he batted .301 at Charleston (A) with 25 stolen bases and a .375 on-base percentage. The following year, Billy played at High Desert (A) and led the California League and the San Diego organization with a .356 average. He also led the league with 49 stolen bases and finished with the league's second highest hit total (176). Last season Hall batted .270 at Wichita (AA) with 27 doubles, 131 hits, 80 runs, 46 RBI and 29 stolen bases. In addition to his 103 stolen bases, he has a .310 overall average in the minors with 55 doubles, 391 hits and a .372 on-base percentage. His bat and his speed will be a tremendous asset to Butch Hobson and the Red Sox. Many believe that the Red Sox' selection of Billy Hall was the best "steal" of the 1993 Rule V Draft.

With the additions of Nixon, Valle, Berryhill and Hall, the Red Sox have complemented their squad with an outstanding blend of youth, experience and speed for this coming season. These players are outstanding additions to the Red Sox organization, an organization that is committed to excellence on the field and in the community around them. Sox fans can expect to see pure baseball excitement as the Red Sox battle their opponents in the A.L. East, West and Central divisions.

Beefsteak Charlie's in Fort Myers is locally owned & operated, giving you that hometown feeling. Tastefully attired in Florida garb, accessorized with bright & colorful exotic bird sculptures & art. Steaks are king here. The menu lists sirloin, filet mignon, steak on a stick, top sirloin & New York cut. Charlie does its steak au natural on a flame broiler, blackened, or topped with herb butter or grilled onions.

Barbecue also gets big play on the menu. Barbecue ribs come three different ways. Award-winning baby back ribs, Texas style barbecued pork ribs, & barbecued beef ribs, yes, we said beef ribs, cut from the prime rib eye. Big & juicy. Although steaks & barbecue ribs are popular, the menu also features chicken & seafood. All the excellent food has made Charlie famous, but it is "The Package" that keeps them coming back again & again according to franchise owner, Bruce Zachritz.

"The Package" Zachritz is so proud of is what sets Beefsteak Charlie's ahead of all those other steakhouses. All complete meals come with all-you-can-eat shrimp & garden fresh salad bar, baked potato or rice, bread basket. Shrimp with dinner is great, but there's more, pitchers of beer, wine, sangria, soda or iced tea. All of this at one price.

Beefsteak Charlie's opens at 11 a.m. seven days a week for lunch. Featuring the "Ultimate" Lunch Buffet, brunch served on Sundays 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Children's menu - ages 10 & under. Located on U.S. 41 just south of Colonial Boulevard.
